

Mother searches for details on son's shooting

Text: + - | |

CTV.ca News Staff
Published Thursday, May. 24, 2007 10:08PM EDT
Last Updated Friday, May. 18, 2012 6:16PM EDT

- MORE DETAILS
- Fatal school shooting triggers security review
 - Suspect in T.O. school shooting still at large
 - Don't blame 50 Cent for gun violence, say authors

The mother of a boy fatally shot in a Toronto school is searching for details on how her son died, as mourners gathered Thursday night for a candlelight vigil.

"We don't know anything, the police haven't told us anything," Lorraine Small told CTV News.

"I haven't even seen my son's body. I haven't seen my son's body."

Jordan Manners, a Grade 9 student at C.W. Jefferys Collegiate Institute, was killed Wednesday afternoon. Police have made no arrests and have released few details about the investigation.

The boy's best friend, Shane Walters, said he found his friend in the hallway and knelt by his side as he lay dying.

"I was trying to talk to him," he said. "I said, 'Jordan, don't die, you stay awake. Don't worry, help is coming.'"

Friends and family comforted Small on Thursday as she remembered her 15-year-old boy.

"Jordan was everything that I lived for. I love all of my kids, but Jordan had something," she said. "I'm very angry."

Classes at C.W. Jefferys were cancelled on Thursday, but 14 grief counsellors were on-hand at the northern Toronto school to help students and staff.

About one-quarter of the student body sought their help. Many are shocked and feel their school is no longer safe.

"I don't really know what to expect anymore.....our school is supposed to be safe," said one student. "And now this happened so easily without any notice."

David Johnston with the Toronto District School Board said that insecure feeling may not go away.

"Initially there is the shock, the disbelief, the I-cant-believe-it-happened-it-can't-be-true. After that normally comes the emotions, the feelings of sadness in mourning the loss of a friend," Johnston explained.

"This is something that I don't think any student at this school will ever forget,"

TORONTO WEATHER | Change city

8 °C Light rain showers

Most Read | Most Watched | Most Commented

MOST READ

- Qur'an-burning pastor denied entry to Canada
- Charity to help those on welfare with emergency pet costs
- Let judge decide,' Ford says on conflict of interest case
- 19-year-old man shot in leg in Scarborough
- Ontario trucker killed in Chicago during robbery

EDITOR'S PICKS

WATCH: Debate Recap: Watch the entire debate between VP hopefuls

WATCH: Bieber is distant cousin of Gosling, Lavigne, Dion

WATCH: Ski cross champion promotes the sport in T.O.

WATCH: Condo owners could be on the hook for huge deductibles

WATCH: Late Blue Jays broadcaster Cheek finalist for Hall of Fame

WATCH: Markham prepares for the 2015 Pan-Am Games

Many who knew Manners described him as someone who dreamed of becoming an actor.

He had made contact with the Canadian film industry, and was one of three young men slated to be featured in a documentary by Toronto filmmakers Mark Simms and Paul Nguyen. Manners was eventually cut from the film called "Lost in the Struggle," about young men growing up in the Jane and Finch neighbourhood.

Groups have sprung up on social networking sites such as Facebook.com to remember Manners and offer his family condolences.

"It's sad to see someone so young go so soon," wrote Ravuth Kim on the group 'In Loving Memory of Jordan Manners RIP.'

"The last time I saw him, he was shooting fireworks on Sunday in front of my house. My deepest sympathies go out to the Manners family."

Kim's message was just one of a long list of similar sympathetic greetings.

As students cope with their grief, police work to find the killer. The homicide, guns and gangs and the intelligent squads are all under pressure to get this crime solved quickly.

Mark Mendelson, a former Toronto homicide detective, told CTV News the killer probably wasn't a stranger to the halls of C.W. Jefferys.

"A professional gangbanger would never walk into a school to do that kind of murder, that's just too dangerous," Mendelson explained.

"Schools are pretty stringent now as to who walks in and who walks out of there. Would I be surprised if it was another student in the school? Not for a minute."

With a report from CTV's Lisa LaFlamme in Toronto

CANADA »

- Delisle to hold on to rank, pension during spy trial
- Qur'an-burning pastor denied entry to Canada
- Laval mayor denounces kickback accusations

HEALTH »

- CFIA warns about salmonella in salad bags
- CDC tracks down most people at risk from tainted steroid shots
- Environment ministers announce agreement to reduce smog

BUSINESS »

- WestJet names new regional service WestJet Encore
- Oil prices rise after Turkey intercepts Syrian plane
- TSX up modestly, traders shrug off Spanish

WORLD »

- 7 U.K. Royal Marines arrested in Afghanistan murder investigation
- In heated debate, Biden, Ryan clash over foreign policy, abortion
- Teen accused of trying to set off car bomb in Chicago pleads not guilty

POLITICS »

- Conservatives underestimate government advertising costs by 37 per cent
- Ottawa commits \$20M in aid to African famine victims
- In heated debate, Biden, Ryan clash over foreign policy, abortion

SPORTS »

- NHL and players' association talk for second straight day, but no breakthrough
- Crosby says players 'willing' to deal as NHL lockout continues
- Italian prosecutor says Armstrong's doctor

ENTERTAINMENT »

- Red Carpet Wrap: Oct. 11
- Madonna's 7-year-old son DJs in L.A. at mom's show
- Harris Savides, cinematographer who worked with Fincher, Van Sant, dies

SCI-TECH »

- Appeals court allows Samsung to continue selling Galaxy Nexus
- Nearby 'diamond planet' twice the size of Earth
- Latest Firefox browser pulled over security fears

AUTOS »

- Vancouver second-most congested city in North America
- Toyota unfazed by latest massive global recall
- How many gears do we really need?